Dad Knows Best!

As a chef, I love teaching my five children about food and cooking. At the supermarket, I ask them to weigh the fruit and explain how I plan to cook that night's meal. In the kitchen, they all wear chef's hats and set to work, each doing a different job such as stirring, cracking eggs and testing the mixture. We use simple packet mixes at first and then go on to pancakes and mini pizzas made from scratch. This Christmas, we made bikkies and wrapped them in baking paper tied with ribbon - they make lovely presses!

Do you have a story to tell about your family? If so write in and tell us in 300 words or less? Target to send 1 p.p.

Whether you're a mum, dad, doting grandparent, proud aunt, uncle or friend, this is your page!

TOT TIPS
 Tell us your best tips and we pay $25 for each one used.

Encourage your kids to use their best manners at Christmas and to help set the table and clear up afterwards. They'll be much more amenable than normal, so make the most of it. After all, you deserve some time off too. Who knows - it might just stick!

Make Christmas special for children rather than just a gift-giving frenzy. Continue or start your family traditions, tell or read them Christmas stories and have a festive trivia quiz and award prizes.
